

It is upsetting and disheartening to see that the ability for a multimillion dollar corporations to expand is more important than a citizen's right to know. The internet is not just a place of pornography and dumb cat videos used by the masses for entertainment alone. The internet is an outlet to discover ideas you've never thought of, crucial to our understanding of the world. The internet may provide you to new knowledge that may have never been known without it. Schools rely on internet as the tool to find sources and that is considered second to a company's profit? Why?
